The upcoming Peace Education Programme in Regina Mundi will be dedicated to 16 days of activism on December 7.

It will be spent with messages and words reminding people of their fundamental Human inner Resources of self-discovery. The main intention of assisting is to simplify people's daily lives and to teach them how to appreciate life as a gift.

There will be messages such as inner peace, appreciation, inner strength, self-awareness, clarity, understanding, dignity, choice, hope, and contentment.

The international ambassador for peace Prem Rawat will be the keynote speaker who will be talking to people of Soweto.

The program is currently running at some of the NGO's and schools in Soweto, and works with ex-convicts, groups and individuals in and around Soweto.

Molebogeng Rakgoale said, "The Peace Education Program has impacted the lives of young and old people in Soweto where they have shared their reflections of how it has assisted them to overcome distractions such as anger and hate."

Rakgoale said, "It has made people to start looking within themselves and do their self-introspection and it has made most people realize the value of being alive."
