FORM 990, Part III, Line 4a

The Peace Education Program (PEP) is becoming self-propelling in a wide variety of populations from universities, to police officers, seniors, and abused women. By the end of 2016, PEP had been presented in 71 countries. It has also been having a remarkable impact in prisons. The Correctional Services Departments of South Africa and Ghana have approved PEP for implementation in all their prisons.

TPRF's Peace Education Program (PEP) was introduced in July of 2012 as a pilot project. A multimedia course with ten themed videos and supplementary print materials, it has helped thousands of people to explore their own inner resources and potential for individual peace. The demand has been growing beyond all expectations. Enthusiasm was contagious, as the feedback from the first participants spread. Participants became volunteer facilitators in order to offer the program to people in their own areas of interest. Both civic and government organizations began to see the potential of the program for their constituents.

In 2016 over 9,000 people participated in 779 Peace Education Programs in 59 countries. PEP was available in 26 languages. Organizations using the program include educational institutions, community centers, veterans groups, police and law enforcement organizations, health and wellness groups, and adult learning centers, to name just a few.

Food for People provided children and ailing adults close to 400,000 meals in 2016 alone. The number of meals served in Nepal doubled with the addition of two new schools badly damaged by the 2015 earthquake. The Ghana facility has added a new school to their program, and the local school built 3 new classrooms to accommodate increased enrollment. With regular nutritious food, all the Otinibi School students who took the tenth grade School Leaving Exam, passed it.

The Food for People (FFP) kitchens in India, Nepal, and Ghana have continued to thrive, as have the students and elderly who eat there. The provision of one nutritious meal in the local cuisine has proved to be a life changer, not just for those served but for their entire villages.

Nepal

FFP Nepal served 189,220 meals in 2016 to 1,238 students from seven area schools. In this extremely poor area where no one went beyond grade seven before the opening of FFP, 92 students graduated from grade 10 in 2016. Of those, 90 passed the state School Leaving Exam, all with grades exceeding the national average, and all of them went on to grade 11. This is a stunning phenomenon for indigenous areas of Nepal and continues to attract attention from education officials.

Ghana

FFP in Otinibi, Ghana serves a culturally and geographically different area from the one in Nepal, but the results are on a similar trajectory. The Otinibi school has doubled its student population, necessitating the addition of three new classrooms. In mid-2016, students from the nearby Aisha Bint Khalifa School, many of whom are orphans, joined the program.

While hunger debilitates, nutritious food clearly opens many doors. Improved health of the children is illustrated by their now joyful participation in sports, an area that had suffered from the lack of energy experienced by many potential athletes. In 2016, 100 percent of the tenth graders taking the national School Leaving Exam passed the test, making it possible for them to go on to higher education.

TPRF SPONSORS EVENTS with its founder to promote the understanding of individual peace as the basis for world peace. This year was no exception, as TPRF supported forums with diverse groups of people in Europe, Africa, Southeast Asia, and South America.

United Kingdom: British Film Institute

TPRF partnered with the Tutu Foundation UK to co-host an event at the British Film Institute in London with Prem Rawat and a distinguished panel of leading voices in law enforcement and criminal justice. Their discussion highlighted the potential of the Peace Education Program (PEP) to reduce inmate recidivism and associated costs. The event featured a screening of Inside Peace, an award-winning documentary film that chronicles how PEP has had a profound impact on the lives of inmates in Texas.

Côte d'Ivoire: Gathering of Kings

This forum brought together hundreds of chiefs, kings, and government officials in the West African nation of Côte d'Ivoire to consider the theme of "Traditional Wisdom in Service to Peace." The event at the prestigious Palais de la Culture focused on cultivating long-term peaceful solutions to this conflict-ridden country. In honor of Prem Rawat's 50 years of peace advocacy, the Chamber of Kings and Chiefs designated him as an honorary chief and citizen of the ancient former capital city of Grand Bassam.

Malaysia: Taylor's University

At Taylor's University in Malaysia, Prem Rawat spoke to students, professors, and staff, followed by a lively question-and-answer session with students participating in TPRF's Peace Education Program. Several students commented on how insightful the event was. "He reminded us that we are human beings. Being alive is something very special, and it is the most valuable gift," said Taylor's University student Saw Kai Xuan.

Brazil: Explosion of PEP

Prem Rawat spoke in the city of São Paulo to nearly a thousand Peace Education Program participants and facilitators who came to the event from around the country. He reinforced several of the same themes that are emphasized in the PEP workshops, encouraging people to tap into their own sense of inner strength as they navigate life's challenges. Governmental and NGO leaders interested in the program also attended.

Volunteers are making PEP programs available in a wide array of settings across Brazil: in prisons, universities, law enforcement, clinics, senior centers, and corporations, as well as government, civic, and cultural centers.
